

Update: 21.07.09 JP

The hotel is situated in the north of the island, near the seaside village of Grand Baie. Formerly a fishermen village, this place has since turned into one of the trendiest places in Mauritius and is often referred to as the local Riviera. Spreading along a beautiful beach lined with filao trees, Grand Baie rapidly became a popular tourist resort, with its trendy restaurants and fashion shops. The Merville cove may be as popular a mooring site as Grand Baie, but the hotel enjoys the advantage of being located in the outlying area of the village while still being at walking distance from its centre.

Merville Beach is a 3-star Superior Category hotel located right in front of a marvellous stretch of pristine sandy beach and also possesses a charming tropical garden, promise of a complete change of scene. Merville Beach's guests are regulars: many of them have been returning for numerous years - it's no secret for them that the region is one the sunniest parts of the island, enjoying an all year round nice climate.

Merville Beach has had no difficulty in preserving the authentic Creole touch that has always contributed to its success. The friendly atmosphere that prevails matches the natural décor of the hotel, where natural materials abound: cane thatches, bamboo, ravenala, raffia and basaltic rock. The artfully decorated living room offers a wonderful view over the lagoon.
